The Kinship of Secrets by Eugenia Kim

From the author of The Calligrapher's Daughter comes the story of two sisters—one raised in the United States, the other in South Korea—and the family that bound them together even as the Korean War kept them apart.

Wolves of Eden by Kevin McCarthy

While a post-Civil War military lieutenant and his long-suffering orderly navigate violence in their search for a band of killers, two war-weary Irish immigrants are swept into a coalition of Native American tribes fighting American expansion.

Broken Field by Jeff Hull

When a hazing scandal rocks a small Montana town's championship season, deep fault lines reveal how much hope weighs on its young athletes. By the author of Pale Morning Done.

The Western Wind by Samantha Harvey

A few days before the beginning of Lent in 1491, a corpse snags briefly on a fallen tree in the river, and vanishes. It is up to the village priest, John Reve, to discover what happened to the wealthiest, most capable and industrious man in the village.

Ways to Hide in Winter by Sarah St. Vincent

A young widow living in the Pennsylvania mountains and flipping burgers for hunters and hikers befriends a stranger visiting from Uzbekistan and becomes embroiled in a manhunt after he confesses to committing a terrible crime in his home country.

Little by Edward Carey

Follows the story of a Swiss orphan who, apprenticed to an eccentric wax sculptor in the seamy streets of Paris, learns her craft and hones her art to become the famous Madame Tussaud.

Go To My Grave by Catriona McPherson

A group of cousins staying at a refurbished bed and breakfast in Galloway realize they had stayed there decades ago for a birthday party that started with schnapps and ended with a girl walking into the sea to her death.

All the Lives We Never Lived by Anuradha Roy

The Man Booker-longlisted author of Sleeping on Jupiter delivers a novel set from World War II India through the present day and follows a son's quest to uncover the story of his freedom-craving, rebellious artist mother.
